

A news app for the people, by the people

Vision Statement

{Three Words} is a news app that plans to replace the way we look at, understand and analyze the current issues of our times, allowing for a more balanced, diplomatic view of current day events. We look to improve the quality of how information is handled, presented and digested.

The main focus is to prevent current day political issues from being inflamed and to provide the stepping stone for a different society where understanding is greater than glorified ignorance, and the views of the many and the educated are more valuable than the views of the few and the ignorant.

The Idea

The app will be split up into two sections, one for journalists and another for users. Users will be able to view articles and reports on the home page, while journalists will be allowed to submit articles, as well as give their views on certain articles, share evidence for other articles and check the statistics on their posts. Each article can be linked with multiple journalists allowing users to look at certain events from multiple different viewpoints.
